INTRODUCTION AND STUDENT TEACHING OVERVIEW

. This handbook gives an overview of the clinical experience for the Bachelor of Education Degree in Primary Education. As teacher education candidates progress through their programs, an increasing importance is placed on field-based learning experiences. Student teaching provides opportunities to apply and reflect on acquired knowledge in the classroom and to develop and refine skills in a classroom setting.

In each of the College of Education's student teaching experiences, candidates are placed with local schools, other educational institutions, or related agencies, under the direct supervision of a mentor teacher at the location. The student teacher must also complete various activities throughout the experiences that require the application of, and reflection on, learned skill sets. The College of Education and the candidate determine selection and placement collaboratively, with a focus on the student teacher's specific career goals. Approval from the hosting school is required before the placement is final.

This packet of materials contains essential information and guidelines to the prospective student teacher in planning and completing the student teaching experience successfully. It is important that these materials be reviewed both at the beginning and throughout the student teaching experience. It is both the goal and the expectation of the College of Education that all candidates become reflective professional educators whose students will be successful learners.

STUDENT TEACHING TIMELINE

Overview: The following sections describe a framework for your progress during student teaching. The design is intended to focus on skills learned during the academic phase of the program and to integrate the knowledge and skills into classroom practices.

Each of the weeks, and its characteristics, is described in detail in the following sections.

Total Length of Student Teaching

Student teaching for all B.ED. programs is a full academic semester, and includes a mandatory Orientation Seminar (2 hours), in which all mentor teachers and college supervisors are expected to participate. Student teachers must also attend 18 hours of Seminar at the beginning of the semester before the classroom experience. These 18 hours prepare you for your classroom experience and provide you with forms and information necessary for the student teaching. The classroom experience is determined to be 300 hours, most likely completed over 10 weeks. If it is determined that you will benefit from more time in the classroom, the time will be extended.

The timelines in each section describe your activities in more detail. During the 10 weeks with your mentor teacher, you will also meet once each week for 2 hours (20 hours) in seminar. The final session of the seminar will address the completion of the student teaching, including your electronic portfolio, and turning in all required assignments and forms, as well as mentor and supervisor evaluations. The total number of hours for student teaching is the following: 2-hour Orientation, 18 hours of seminar before supervision begins, 300 hours of student teaching, and 20 hours of seminar during supervision for a total of 340 contact hours.

Overview: The following subsections describe the activities that are part of your student teaching. The responsibilities progress from supportive activities in the classroom toward full responsibility for all teaching, and then scaling back your involvement with the class until the mentor teacher is again the main instructor.

Week 1: Observe, assist, co-plan and co-teach

Observations during the first week of student teaching will be spent on the classroom environment and management techniques. The first weeks of student teaching are to be spent in observing the classroom environment through the perspective of classroom management, instructional strategies, and assessment practices. You should arrange to observe other teachers in the building as well as your mentor teacher. Observation guides are in the Appendix.

When you are assisting, co-planning, and co-teaching, remember that in your academic studies, practices were discussed as an ideal way of doing things; encounters during student teaching are often variations of the ideal way that take classroom realities into consideration.

Keep a set of reflective notes for the purpose of asking questions of your mentor teacher regarding your observations and inferences. With the ultimate goal of improving student understanding, the written reflections and discussions with your supervisor and mentor should focus on how to use the management and instructional strategies and assessment practices to improve the quality of students' learning.

- a. Assist: These tasks support the mentor teacher's role in monitoring student progress and enable you to become acquainted with the students.
 - Check attendance.
 - Distribute papers or materials.
 - Help in grading papers.
 - Monitor students' work at their desks and give one-to-one assistance.
 - Assist students with make-up work/tutorials.
- b. Co-plan: Learn how planning is done in your school. While requirements and standards are used in all independent schools, each school has slightly different policies and practices. Help your mentor teacher and her colleagues plan for the lessons.
- c. Co-teach: During the first week, independent teaching of a full class lesson is not encouraged; however, starters, closers, or a short activity within the lesson are good ways to begin getting to know the students and to use your knowledge and skills. Co-teaching allows you to gain some experience in front of the class with support from the mentor teacher. It also allows the students to observe the cooperative relationship between you, as the student teacher, and the mentor teacher.

Week 2: Observe, assist, co-plan and co-teach

Week 2 expectations involve continued observations – this week's observations are on assessment practices, both formative and summative; and observing both classroom management and instructional strategies in the same lesson.

- a. Observe: The main focus of observations in the second week is on classroom management and instructional strategies in the same lesson. Guides and forms are included in the Appendix.
- b. Assist: Continue the tasks from the first week and add more interactions with individual students as well as group work.
- c. Co-plan: Continue co-planning, but add a component of independent planning for a starter, closer, or short activity. Discuss it with your mentor, then teach it.
- d. Co-teach: Continue co-teaching but take on a larger role with a single group of students, add an additional section by repeating the same activity, or teach the activity at a different grade level if you have the opportunity.

Let your mentor teacher know when you are ready to become more involved. She/he may hesitate to challenge you, so demonstrate enthusiasm and initiative. At the same time, be sensitive to your mentor teacher and do not attempt to take over the class too quickly.

Weeks 3 & 4: Observe, assist, co-plan, independently plan, co-teach, and independently teach

Activities during Weeks 3 and 4 move you toward more independence with the students, but still under the close supervision of your mentor. In Week 4, you will take on more responsibility as you prepare to become the main instructor during Week 5.

- a. Observe: The observations in the third week are to combine classroom management strategies, instructional strategies, and assessment practices in the same lesson. Guides and forms are included in the Appendix.
- b. Assist: In Week 3, continue the tasks from the first and second week and add more interactions with individual students as well as group work. By the end of Week 4, you should be teaching fulltime – whole lessons, multiple classes, and/or multiple topics, depending on your student teaching placement.
- c. Co-plan and independently plan: Continue co-planning and independent planning for the main activity for multiple sections of the same class, different grade levels, etc., depending on your student teaching placement and your mentor teacher's teaching load. Always discuss your ideas with your mentor teacher and supervisor. Week 5 should see you prepared to do a full teaching load.
- d. Co-teach and independently teach: Continue co-teaching and increase your independent teaching experiences in the class in any number of ways, such as
 - Divide the class into two groups with each of you taking a group for instruction.
 - Divide the instructional time—one person does the introduction and presentation of skills, while the other person carries out the independent practice and evaluation segments of the lesson.
 - One person may present the lesson content while the other one supervises the cooperative group work.

When you are teaching independently, your mentor teacher should be in the room with you, but as an observer, not a co-teacher.

Weeks 5-9: Full Responsibility for Teaching

The period of full responsibility for teaching begins in week 5 and continues through Week 9. A gradual increase in teaching activities has led to this time of full responsibility for at least 12 hours of classes during the school week. For at least 25 consecutive days during which school is in session, it is your responsibility to plan and teach as the regular classroom teacher. Remember, too, that you will also perform all other duties related to teaching. Your mentor teacher is still involved with checking your plans, observing your teaching, and providing helpful feedback for improvement.

Week 10-Final Week: Scaling Back Responsibilities

During the final week, the process is reversed from the first weeks of student teaching. Your mentor teacher resumes her/his teaching responsibility throughout the week until she/he is again the main instructor. You should continue to assist and observe until the end of the week.

Note: The following table is a list of your assignments during the semester. Guidelines and/or forms related to each one are located in the Appendix. Any modifications are a decision to be made between you, your mentor, and your college supervisor.

ASSIGNMENTS

Throughout your student teaching, keep a well-organized ring-notebook of printed notices, information, and materials collected during your work. It should be up-to-date and available for and member of the student teaching staff to examine on any visit to your school. Details of its contents are listed in the Appendix.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Remember that student teaching is a university course required to complete your chosen program. As such, there are assignments that must be completed. The following descriptions will help you fulfill the requirements for your student teaching and also produce artifacts that might be included in your E-Folio.

- A. E-Folio: Creating and maintaining an E-Folio on TaskStream (www.taskstream.com) is a required component of all B.ED. programs in the College of Education. It will document your professional experiences across all methods courses and field experiences, and show your competence in your chosen profession. The E-Folio will be evaluated within your program, and details will be provided in the Student Teaching Seminar.
- B. Notebook: Organize a student teaching notebook. Keep this notebook on your desk so that when your supervisor comes to observe, she/he will be able to locate it easily. You will need a ring file with six section dividers labeled as follows:
1. General Information—Include items such as blank forms, school and office memos, calendars, and university information.
 2. Observations—Collect copies of the assigned observation forms for the first three weeks of student teaching. Guidelines and forms are available in the Appendix.
 3. Lesson Plans—Use the lesson plan form provided in the Handbook Appendix for every lesson you teach and for the lessons that are part of your Unit Plan. Be sure to have your mentor teacher initial any lesson plans you keep in your notebook. Keep the most recent lesson plans at the front of this section. Reflections should be included for every lesson you teach. You may write your reflections on the back of the lesson plan form or on a separate sheet of paper after teaching a lesson. Put the lesson plan—and the reflection—in your notebook after teaching the lesson.
 4. Mentor Teacher/Supervisor Evaluations and Feedback—Encourage your mentor teacher to evaluate you and give written feedback as often as possible (at least once each week). She/he may use the evaluation forms found in the Handbook Appendix. Keep a copy of the evaluation in your notebook. Also, every time your college supervisor visits, an evaluation will be completed on your performance. Keep copies of all your evaluations in this section of your notebook; originals will be kept by your mentor teacher and college supervisor. Evaluations that are more formal—using the Clinical Experience Evaluation Survey (CEES) will also be conducted at the mid- and final points of your student teaching.
 5. Journal - Make reflective entries in your journal each week. It is a place for observations, reflections, and questions. The journal should be accessible to your college supervisor to comment on your observations and to answer your questions.
 6. Course Assignments - Include documentation, with all forms filled in, for all required student teaching assignments, as listed in the paragraphs below. These must be accurately completed and approved by your college supervisor. Make sure your college supervisor initials each document. A chart with the assignment timeline is included in the Appendix.
- C. Reflections (What and When):
1. After teaching the lesson, reflect on these questions:
 - a. What went well in the lesson, and why do you think it went well?
 - b. What can you do to improve the lesson for next time?
 - c. How did you evaluate student learning?
 2. Reflective Journal—record perspectives and interpretations on events of your Student Teaching. See the rubric in the Appendix.
 3. Before mid-point and final evaluations—assess your overall teaching capabilities and performance. Complete these the week before the mid-point and final three-way conferences. Guiding questions and the rubric are included in the Appendix.
- D. Parent Contact Report and Log: In consultation with your mentor teacher, schedule and conduct at least one parent conference. Document this conference on the Parent Conference

Report Form included in the Handbook Appendix. Keep a log of all parent contacts; this includes telephone calls (even attempted calls), informal chats in the hall, conferences, home visits, and notes. A log template is included in the Handbook Appendix.

E. Unit Plan

1. Purpose: You will develop a Unit Plan, made up of all lesson plans and supporting materials, targeting a concept in the curriculum. The goal of the unit is to develop rich, rigorous, engaging learning situations for students based on a targeted concept. It should include extensive use of technology for learning, multiple opportunities for active engagement by students, and carefully differentiated instruction and assessment to enable diverse learners to succeed.
2. Specifics:
 - The unit should be a set of sequenced lessons all related to different topics within the concept. The sequence should be logical and appropriate to the concept.
 - The unit should take four (4) to six (6) blocks of class time to complete.
 - The unit should align with the prescribed curriculum of the school and subject area.

F. Student Teaching Seminar: See details in the Course Expectations section below.

COURSE EXPECTATIONS

School Schedule

During this ten-week period, your student teaching begins at the time teachers are required to arrive at your school until the time teachers are released at the end of the day—Sunday through Thursday.

Student Teaching Seminar

A weekly seminar is scheduled for student teachers to meet as a group. The topics for the seminar include accessing resources to deal with unexpected situations that arise during the student teaching, continued professional development, and Qatar University procedures required as part of each BED program, including the E-Folio.

Seminar Attendance

The College of Education views seminar attendance as the responsibility of individual students, and you are expected to attend the weekly seminars, to be on time, and to complete all assignments as they are done in class. A minimum of 2-3 seminar sessions will be held after the close of the school placement but before the end of the semester to complete online requirements and to finalize paperwork and forms. University rules regarding absences will be followed. If an absence from Seminar is necessary, you should communicate with the seminar instructor(s) regarding the situation. Failure to do so may result in a conference and/or termination of your student teaching.

ASSIGNMENT VALUES AND GRADE SYSTEM

Each assignment during your Student Teaching has a value in your overall grade, and the final grade is calculated and posted by your college supervisor.

Assignment	Maximum Score	Grade Value
Parent Conference Report	5	5%
Notebook and Weekly Journal	10	5%
Mid and Final Journal Report	20	10%
*Unit Plan	20	20%
*CEES (Final Only)	4.00 Average	25%

STUDENT TEACHING POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

School Attendance

Since the student teaching is a university course and is a required part of the BED programs, the attendance policy—including the Seminar—is in accordance with Qatar University’s attendance policy, which is fully described in the QU Student Handbook. Some modifications to the University policy are in place. Three days’ absence for illness or other urgent circumstances are permitted; however, if you miss more than three days, you must make up the time. If a serious condition requires that you miss an extended number of days, be sure to discuss it with your college supervisor before your absence, if at all possible. Arrangements can be made for you to complete your student teaching based on your specific situation.

As a student teacher, you are expected to be in attendance at your placement school according to the calendar for that specific school. Leaving the school campus during the school day is not permitted without prior approval from your college supervisor. It is your responsibility to inform the mentor teacher, college supervisor, and the school office as early as possible in case of an illness or other forced absence. Be sure to arrange communication details with both your mentor teacher and college supervisor, e.g., e-mail, phone, or SMS, at the beginning of your student teaching in case something arises that will interfere with the normal schedule.

Holidays and Staff Development Days

During the student teaching period, you will observe the holidays scheduled by the school to which you are assigned, regardless of the holidays observed by Qatar University. You are expected to be at school on staff development days and to participate in professional development programs when appropriate.

Evaluations

Written documentation of your performance is vital and should be specific, systematic, and include suggestions for improvement. College supervisors and mentor teachers use the evaluation forms, found in the Appendix, for regular written evaluations. Making multiple copies of the completed evaluation forms allow them to be shared with you by both the college supervisor and the mentor teacher.

The supervisor and mentor teacher will each complete several evaluation forms regarding your progress. The Mid-point Evaluation is held during the fifth week on your progress to date. If you have not made sufficient progress, a plan must be developed with collaboration among the mentor, the supervisor, and you (the candidate), and the plan must be signed by all members. This will be the guide for your continued progress during the second half of student teaching. The Final Evaluation (during the 10th week) is your summary evaluation and will be the focus of the Final Conference.

You should review both evaluations. Sign and date them and make sure the evaluators also sign. You and the evaluators each receive a copy of every completed form. These forms are added to your academic file when they are sent to the program office after all signatures are added.

It is also requested that student teachers, supervisors, mentor teachers, and other school personnel involved with student teaching assignments complete a program evaluation form in order to provide information about the strengths and weaknesses in the teacher preparation program. These program evaluation forms will be available in a Seminar session near the end of the semester.

RE-ASSIGNMENT OR TERMINATION OF STUDENT TEACHING

If a candidate is experiencing significant difficulty during the semester, there are procedures and practices that provide options. If either you or your college supervisor has serious concerns about your placement, the situation must be documented before any action can be taken. If the problems cannot be resolved with your mentor and school, and depending on your specific situation, the following alternatives are possible:

- a. You might be re-assigned to another classroom for the remainder of the semester—possibly in another school.
- b. You might withdraw with the option of repeating the student teaching the following semester.
- c. You might stop the student teaching with a grade of “Incomplete.” If and when you complete the requirements for the student teaching, the “Incomplete” can be changed to a full grade.

Sometimes a student teacher is unable to finish his/her student teaching for a variety of reasons. On rare occasions, a student teacher must be asked to leave the program completely. The following are the basis for such an action:

- a. If there is mutual consent and agreement by the student teacher, cooperating school, and college supervisor for reasons of illness, injury, or other unforeseen problem.
- b. If the student teacher cannot establish and maintain a satisfactory performance level in classroom instruction and management, and this continues after repeated conferences and support from the mentor teacher and college supervisor.
- c. If the student teacher does not abide by the policies of the cooperating school.
- d. If the student teacher demonstrates unprofessional conduct towards supervisors, school personnel, or students.

If it becomes necessary to terminate a student teacher’s placement, specific policies and procedures are in place to finalize the process. Details of the process are outlined in the QU Student Handbook.

Name _____ Date: _____

Mentor Teacher: _____ # of Students: _____

Grade Level: _____ Subject: _____ Time Frame: _____

Qatar Standards

Write out the Qatar Standard and provide number and letter where appropriate.

Objective(s)

State what you expect students to know and be able to do after completing the lesson.

Resources (Used in planning)

Include book title(s), text, website, or other source information used to help put together the learning plan.

Materials (Used in teaching & learning)

Identify the quantity of various materials needed for the activity. Do not forget multimedia equipment when needed.

Activating Prior Knowledge/Focus/Motivation

Include something to activate students' prior knowledge and capture students' interest and motivate them for learning. This may be in the form of a question or a demonstration. Be creative, but make sure it connects to the overall lesson objective. Suggestion: After the focus activity, state the lesson's objective to students.

Teacher Strategies

Describe instructional strategies to be used. Indicate how the activity should be done. Keep in mind to use cooperative learning, methods of inquiry, or investigation when possible and to integrate content areas and technology in instruction as much as possible in activities.

Student Activities

In direct instruction situations, students may be guided through models or examples, then provided independent practice. If students are exploring and investigating an activity first, you may allow students to explain results, follow with questions, and then make points necessary relating to particular content information or expected solutions based on student experiences and questions.

Differentiation/Modifications

Suggest what you will do to differentiate or modify the lesson for students with diverse needs. What will you do for students who are having difficulty understanding concepts or skills taught in the lesson or need additional support?

Lesson Extension

Suggest ways to extend the activity for students. Indicate what students could do to apply the concepts and process skills learned to new situations. This can be used as extended activities for students who complete work and are ready to move on. No new information is taught here—students are applying what they have learned in the lesson to a new context.

Closure

Bring the lesson to a close. Restate the instructional objective. You may want to summarize activities or ask students to respond to questions to check for student understanding of the basic concepts addressed by the activity.

Assessment

Explain how you plan to assess students, and include any materials that are needed. Include the scoring rubric you would use for evaluation purposes or observational checklists when appropriate. (Be sure to match objectives to assessments.)

Reflective Evaluation of Lesson: Reflection is done after teaching the lesson:

Reflect on your own teaching. You may consider addressing the following questions:

- a. What went well in the lesson, and why do you think it went well?
- b. What can you do to improve the lesson for next time?
- c. How did you evaluate student learning?

Candidate Observation Guidelines And Forms (Used When Observing Other Classrooms)

Task 1: Observing Classroom Management

Several factors should be noted during these observations: What is the general atmosphere of the classroom itself? What kind and how many interpersonal actions take place?

- a. General classroom environment
 - How does the classroom feel – inviting or unfriendly?
 - How are samples of student work displayed throughout the classroom?
 - How are artifacts of the subject area displayed? (e.g., Does it look as if Arabic is taught and learned in the classroom?)
- b. What kind and how many interactions occur in the classroom? How can interactions be more effective in supporting student learning and understanding?
 - Teacher-to-student: How much talking is done by only the teacher during the lesson? Is the talking filled with questions or factual information?
 - Student-to-teacher: How much of an opportunity do the students have to ask questions of the teacher, or are the students merely providing simple answers to closed-ended questions?
 - Student-to-student: How much and what kinds of opportunities do students have to work collaboratively or to talk to each other about the topic?
- c. Application: Select at least one management technique that you will implement and report on your progress during Seminar.

Time	Management Technique or Skill	Comment
Environment
	General impression of the classroom
	Display of students' work
Interactions
	Teacher-to-student
	Student-to-teacher
	Student-to-student

Task 2: Observing Instructional Strategies

During the observations of instructional strategies, the focus should be on the lesson structure and how deeply students are engaged in the lesson.

- a. Lesson structure
 - Does the lesson plan include a variety of ways to involve students in active learning?
 - Is teacher following the lesson plan?
 - Does the lesson include specific strategies for student’s diverse needs (rather than just “fast, average, and slower” learners)?
- b. Student engagement
 - How are students actively participating in the lesson?
 - How are students working together?
 - How frequently does the teacher ask open-ended questions?
- c. Application: Select at least one instructional strategy that you will implement and report on your progress during Seminar.

Time	Instructional Strategies	Comment
Lesson structure
	Active learning
	Alignment to lesson plan
	Differentiation
Student engagement
	Student participation
	Student collaboration
	Open-ended questioning

Task 3: Observing Assessment Practices

Both formative and summative assessments should be observed and applied for the third task.

- a. Examples of uses for formative assessments
 - To determine the level of a student’s understanding, and then adjust the instruction to meet the student’s needs.
 - For the teacher’s self-assessment in presenting the lesson – Am I presenting the information in a way that students are following?
- b. Examples of types of formative assessments
 - Open-ended questions
 - Graphic organizers
 - Activity or lab worksheets
 - Exit cards
- c. Examples of uses of summative assessments
 - Students’ grades
 - Student motivation
 - School reports

Technology for Learning TaskStream Assignment

Overview

Technology provides a variety of tools to enhance teaching skills and clarify concepts. They are also valuable to students in the learning process. These two components are assessed during the student teaching semester in an observed lesson.

To fulfill the three requirements of the standard you must satisfactorily complete the following:

- Demonstrate the appropriate use of technology in teaching.
- Demonstrate that students use appropriate technology for learning.
- Demonstrate an awareness of appropriate technologies to enhance learning by students with exceptionalities.

Assignment

- A. For one of your observed lessons, integrate a technology that is appropriate to the content, and includes interactivity for the students.

Examples of an appropriate use of interactive technology to enhance teaching:

- Language lesson: Using an interactive whiteboard in an Arabic language or English class, have young students write the name of the item in each of the displayed pictures.
- Social Studies: Using a printed transparency map of Qatar on an overhead projector, have students locate Doha and other cities and towns within the borders. Then have students draw the roads between them on each of their own maps.
- Math: Using calculators and an interactive grid on a whiteboard, calculate which of two shapes needs a longer fence.
- Physics: Using motion detectors and a graphing program, determine which motions create or replicate various graphs.

NOTE: A simple slide show during a lecture is not considered adequate for this task.

- B. For one of your observed lessons, integrate a technology that enhances student learning and is appropriate to both the content and the student level.

Examples of an appropriate use of interactive technology to enhance learning:

- Social Studies: Students create a PowerPoint slide show with embedded audio and video to show architectural differences between old and new Doha and show the cultural influence over history.
- Language: Students create recordings of their pronunciation of various words, phrases, and sounds and analyze them in order to speak more clearly.
- Chemistry: Students use a modeling program to create virtual molecules and to balance chemical equations.

NOTE: Teaching students how to create slides does not fulfill the requirements for this task.

- C. In your lesson plan, describe several (3-5) specific technologies that would enable a student with an exceptionality to enhance his/her learning.

Examples of appropriate technologies to enhance the learning of a student with exceptionalities:

- Students with vision difficulties use alternative color schemes for viewing large-print text on a monitor.
- A student with difficulty using a keyboard uses a dictation application to record class notes.

Unit Plan Guidelines

TaskStream Assignment

Purpose

A Unit Plan, made up of complete lesson plans and supporting materials, should target a concept—not a topic—in the curriculum. The goal of the unit is to develop rich, rigorous, engaging learning situations for students based on the targeted concept. It should include extensive use of technology for learning, multiple opportunities for active engagement by students, and carefully differentiated instruction and assessment to enable diverse learners to succeed.

Specifics

1. The unit should be a set of sequenced lessons all related to different topics within the concept.
2. The unit's objectives should align with the prescribed curriculum of the school and subject area.
3. The unit should take four (4) to six (6) blocks of class time to teach.
4. Rubrics for lesson plans and the unit will be used to evaluate your work. Be sure to use them for additional information about how to complete your unit. The rubrics can be found in the Appendix.

Assessment Analysis Guidelines

TaskStream Assignment

Overview

One way to measure the impact we have on student learning is with a pre- and post-test comparison. The difference between the two scores should be the result of our teaching. The information from this assessment analysis is used to design future lessons and to improve skills in the use of various instructional strategies.

The main intention of this assignment is to collect and use assessment data to modify instruction and improve student learning. Adaptations may be necessary when applied to specific situations.

Adaptations

This analysis should be adapted for students of different grade levels, for different subjects, and for assessment of students with various exceptionalities. For example, students in early grades do not have the same capacity for abstract thinking as secondary students; language subjects use different strategies for teaching and learning than other content areas such as math; and students who have specialized instruction often are working with the teaching in a small group or one-to-one.

Description

1. Select a set of 3-5 daily lessons on the same topic or concept.
2. Design a test that reflects what you think students should know, understand, and be able to do at the end of the set of lessons. It will be easier to analyze if the questions are either right or wrong. Later, you can analyze items that are worth more than one point.
3. Have your students take the test before you begin teaching and record their marks on a spreadsheet. Use “1” for an answer is correct, use “0” if the answer is wrong.
4. Record their marks for each item, as well as their total score. When you have completed the lessons, have the students take the same test, scoring and recording it in the same way as the pre-test.

When you have both sets of scores for each student on each item, the following questions and will be helpful in the analysis and reflection.

Data collection

1. Calculate the mean, median, and mode for both pre-and post-test.
2. Calculate the total for each of the items of both tests. This tells us which items had the most correct responses. (Frequency distribution)
3. Calculate the mean for each of the items. (Item analysis)
4. Determine which items addressed individual levels of Bloom’s Taxonomy.

Analysis

1. Mean, median, and mode for both pre-and post-test
 - a. How do they compare?
 - b. What does this tell you about the results?
2. Items with the most correct responses or highest points
 - a. In the pre-test, what does this mean?
 - b. In the post-test what does this mean?
3. The frequency of correct responses to an individual item
 - a. Did it change or stay the same?
 - b. Was the change positive or negative?
4. Items addressing individual levels of Bloom’s Taxonomy
 - a. What type of question appeared most often?
 - b. How do these items compare to the frequency distribution you did for #2 in the data collection?

Display the Results

1. Use the chart function of the spreadsheet program to make a chart or figure of your data or arrange the data in a table.

2. Use the table or figure you created in reflecting on the results.

Implications

1. When comparing the mean, median, and mode of the pre- and post-tests, what might this indicate?
2. Did the group of items with the most correct responses get smaller, stay the same, or get bigger? What does this indicate?
3. When comparing the items from the pre-test to the same items on the post-test:
 - a. What does it mean if fewer students answered correctly after the instruction?
 - b. What does it mean if more students answered correctly after the instruction?
 - c. If there were items that showed no change in score from pre- to post-test, what might you conclude?
4. What are some implications of the analysis of the test items distributed on Bloom's taxonomy?
 - a. Which level of the taxonomy levels had the most questions?
 - b. Which level of questions had the most correct responses?

Extended analysis

1. Use the spreadsheet array to do a content analysis.
 - a. Which items are related to the same content?
 - b. Which content items were aligned with which level of Bloom's taxonomy?
 - c. How many correct responses were associated to each of the items of the same or similar content?

Reflection

1. How helpful was it to display the results in a table, graph, or chart?
2. What did you learn about student learning from doing this activity?
3. How would you use this information in planning future lessons?
